(6) The Court shall refuse to take or admit any evidence which is not admissible under Shariah and may disallow any question which in its opinion is indecent or scandalous and, for reasons to be recorded, refuse to take or admit any evidence which, in its opinion is being tendered for the purpose of causing vexation or delay or to insult or annoy any person or for defeating the ends of judgement.

(7) The Zila Qazi or the Ilaqa Qazi may in any proceedings pending before it make such interim orders as he may consider necessary.

(8) After the conclusion of evidence and hearing the oral exposition of the parties or their authorised agents if any, and taking into consideration the opinion of the Moavneen-e-Qazi, if any, the Court shall pronounce its judgement.

CHAPTER VII PROCEDURE IN CIVIL MATTERS

29. Presentation of Civil matters.—(1) In every civil suit the plaint shall be in writing and shall be accompanied by the documents in possession of the plaintiff, if any, and by a list of documents relied upon by him and shall be presented to the Court personally by the plaintiff or his authorised agent.

(2) On receipt of the plaint referred to in sub-section (1) the Court may record the statement of the plaintiff on oath, on material questions relating to the suit.

(3) If, after the examination of the plaint and the documents attached thereto and the statement of the plaintiff, the Court is of the opinion that a case appears to have been made out the Court shall issue summons to the defendant for a date to be fixed by the Court for filing his written statement.

(4) Where the Court is of the opinion that no case has been made out, the Court may reject the plaint.

30. Written statement.—(1) On the first hearing or within such time as the Court may allow the defendant shall either personally or through his authorised agent, present a written statement and the Court may record the statement of the defendant, on oath, on material questions relating to the suit.

(2) A written statement shall be accompanied by the documents in possession of defendant, if any, and by a list of documents relied upon by him.

31. Admission of claim.—(1) Where a defendant admits the claim of the plaintiff, Court shall at once pronounce the judgment accordingly.

(2) Where there are more than one defendants, and any one of the defendants admits the case of the plaintiff, the Court may at once pronounce the judgment against such defendant and the suit shall proceed only against the remaining defendant or defendants.

(3) Where a defendant admits a part of the claim, the Court may, if the plaintiff so desires, pronounce the judgement in respect of such admitted claim and the suit shall proceed in respect of such claim unless the plaintiff gives up that claim.

32. Settlement of dispute.—(1) If the defendant does not admit the claim of the plaintiff, the Court shall, before framing the issues, attempt to bring about a settlement of the dispute between the parties, either itself or through a mediator.

(2) Where the parties agree to the appointment of a mediator the provisions contained in section 45 shall apply.

33. Framing of Issues.— If the parties do not reach a settlement, the Court will proceed to frame the issues on which the decision of the case appears to depend and fix a date for production of evidence by the parties in support of their respective claims.

34. Responsibility of the parties to produce evidence.— It shall be the responsibility of the parties to produce evidence, whether oral or documentary or both:

Provided that, where the Court is satisfied that it is beyond the control of a party to produce a witness or a document, it may, on an application made to it within seven days of the framing of issues, through a process of the Court, summon any witness for making deposition or producing documents in the Court.

35. Power to Issue Interim orders.— The Zila Qazi or the Ilaqa Qazi may in any proceedings pending before him make such interim orders as he may consider necessary.

36. Judgment and decree.— After the conclusion of evidence and hearing the oral exposition of the parties or their authorised agents, if any, the Court shall pronounce its judgement and a decree shall follow.

37. Decision of case on the basis of oath.— Notwithstanding anything contained in this Chapter, if at any stage of the proceedings but before the judgment is pronounced either the plaintiff or the defendant makes before the Court an offer that he will admit or accept the claim or defence of the other party if the other party asserts its claim or defence on oath in the name of Allah Almighty on the Holy Quran and the other party accepts the offer and asserts its claim or defence on such oath, the case shall be decided by the Court in accordance with such assertion and a decree shall follow.

38. Execution of decrees.—(1) After a final decree has been passed in a case, the Court shall, without any application by the decree holder, take steps and pass such orders for its execution as it considers appropriate.

(2) The execution of a money decree shall not be stayed except on deposit of the decretal amount by the judgement-debtor or on his furnishing security to the satisfaction of the Court.

Abolition of existing civil and criminal courts.— On the establishment of the Courts of Qazis under this Ordinance, the criminal courts established under the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1890 (Act V of 1898), and the civil courts established under the law relating to the establishment of such courts in force in a Province, shall stand abolished and any court established under any other law shall cease to exercise jurisdiction in respect of any matter to which the jurisdiction of the Courts of Qazis extends.

54. Power to make rules.—(1) The Provincial Government may, by notification in the official Gazette, make rules for carrying out the purposes of this Ordinance.

(2) Subject to the provisions of this Ordinance and the rules, the High Court may lay down such guidelines and issue such instructions as it considers necessary or expedient for carrying the provisions of this Ordinance into effective operation.

55. Certain laws not to apply to proceedings under the Ordinance.— Nothing contained in the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 (Act V of 1908), or the Evidence Act, 1872 (I of 1872), shall apply to the proceedings under this Ordinance.

Provided that no case shall be remanded to a lower Court unless it has committed an error, omission or irregularity by reason of which there has not been a proper trial or an effectual or complete adjudication of a case and the complaining of such error, omission or irregularity has been materially prejudiced thereby.
